Focus

The Fairfax County Economic Development Authority (FCEDA) was created by an act of the Virginia General Assembly dated 1964, as amended. The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors appoints the seven members of the FCEDA's Commission, which in turn, appoints the FCEDA's president. The Board of Supervisors appropriates funds annually to the FCEDA for its personnel and programs.

The FCEDA works to fill office space, thereby creating demand for the new construction that contributes to the real estate tax base and enables the Board of Supervisors to provide high quality public services while minimizing the burden of the costs for residents. To do so, the FCEDA provides direct assistance to businesses that are considering establishing or expanding their business operations in Fairfax County. It supplies companies with a wide range of information, site location assistance, introductions to needed services and financing sources, and more. The Authority closely tracks the County's real estate markets to provide new and expanding firms with commercial space options best suited to their needs. The businesses are then fully informed to make the site decision that best suits their needs. All of the services of the FCEDA are provided without charge and in the strictest confidence.

The Economic Development Authority supports the following County Vision Elements:

- Creating a Culture of Engagement
- Maintaining Healthy Economies

The County's office space inventory topped 114 million square feet at year-end 2013, an increase of 721,144 square feet to the office space inventory over year-end 2012. Fairfax County is the second largest suburban office market in the United States and has 32 percent of the commercial office space in the Commonwealth of Virginia. In the past three years, the real estate tax assessments have fluctuated in a range from 3.2 percent to 5.8 percent. Today, Fairfax County has 17,101,871 square feet of vacant office space. As a point of comparison, downtown Richmond's active inventory of office space totals only 16,922,785 square feet.

The direct office vacancy rate rose to 14.9 percent at the close of 2013, up from 14.4 percent at year-end 2012. This was the highest vacancy rate since 1991 when the direct office vacancy rate was 16.8 percent. Likewise, the overall office vacancy rate, which includes sublet space, increased to 17.1 percent at the end of 2013, up from 16.7 percent at year-end 2012. Increases in the overall and direct rates were expected because of general economic conditions, and concerns about the federal budget. Until the vacancy rate of Fairfax County office space is reduced from the current 17.1 percent, there will be a slower pace of speculative construction with a corresponding impact on the real estate tax base.

New office development increased during 2013 around Metro stations in the Silver Line corridor and in southeastern Fairfax County near Fort Belvoir. New office deliveries topped 1 million square feet in ten buildings during 2013, up from 593,000 square feet of space delivered in 2012. At year-end 2013, nine buildings totaling nearly 1 million square feet were under construction countywide. More than 69 percent of the new office space under construction is speculative development.

As has been the case for the past three years, the overwhelming majority of leasing activity in 2013 involved renewals and consolidations. Leasing activity increased in 2013 compared to 2012. Office absorption during 2013 topped 11.6 million square feet up from 10.7 million square feet in 2012. Demand for office space is expected to remain stable through 2014 even as new construction continues. Lease rates for new space are adjusting to market conditions as many tenants are taking advantage of favorable rates, and others are looking to capitalize on market conditions by consolidating operations in newer space near Metro. The Tysons Corner market is uniquely positioned to take advantage of this trend with more than 26 million square feet of new office space in the pipeline.

The FCEDA targets strong and comparable U.S. and global markets and industries to accelerate the process of business attraction. Some of these are new while others are more traditional. A primary objective continues to be the further diversification of the County's economic base, building on the recent successes in the government contractor sector, (e.g., the corporate headquarters of CSC, Northrop Grumman, SAIC and others), as well as those that are less dependent upon government contracting, (e.g., Cvent, Intelsat, Bechtel, Hilton Worldwide, Volkswagen North America and others).

Performance Measurement Results

As forecast, the number of new jobs created in FY 2013 decreased from the number created in FY 2012 due to reductions in U.S. government procurements and the in-sourcing of federal projects away from the private sector. It is anticipated that this trend will continue over the next several years. As of July 2013, the FCEDA replaced the measurement of market share of venture capital deals, and the number of foreign and minority-owned firms with a new measure, Retention Conversions, the number of companies that were retained in the County. This measure more accurately reflects the impact of the tasks performed by the FCEDA.
