3. Creating Active Places. How patterns of land use and urban design can create neighborhoods and centers that attract a variety of users.	Ranking
a. I support adding parks and open space throughout Tysons even if this may require development to be concentrated on smaller sites, resulting in taller buildings.	1 2 3 4 5
b. I support more public art, performance spaces, educational facilities, and meeting centers in Tysons. This will require significant public and private investment.	1 2 3 4 5
c. Tysons should include a mix of housing, enabling more people to live near their jobs and not have to drive to work.	1 2 3 4 5
d. Growth should be distributed evenly between areas within walking distance of transit stations and areas that are farther away from transit stations.	1 2 3 4 5
e. Areas within walking distance of transit stations should accommodate the vast majority of the growth anticipated in Tysons.	1 2 3 4 5

4. Being a Good Neighbor. How the impacts of growth within Tysons affect surrounding communities.	Ranking
a. High rise buildings in Tysons should not block significant views from or be located adjacent to neighborhoods at the edge of Tysons.	1 2 3 4 5
b. Connectivity between the neighborhoods surrounding Tysons and neighborhoods and activity centers in Tysons should be limited. This would protect residents outside of Tysons from the impacts of growth even if it would also make it more difficult for these residents to access Tysons’ amenities and jobs.	1 2 3 4 5
c. Mixed-use centers should be dispersed throughout the neighborhoods in Tysons to serve the daily needs of local residents even if this means that some employment and retail will be incorporated into residential neighborhoods.	1 2 3 4 5
