5:45 pm Unnatural Causes - Episode 5: Place Matters

The neighborhood that you live in is a good predictor of your health. Those living in neglected areas are at heightened risk for serious illness. What policies and investment decisions create living environments that harm – or enhance – the health of residents? What actions can make a difference? Solving the health problems of disadvantaged communities isn't easy, but it begins by looking at health through a social policy not just a medical lens.

6:15 pm Health Equity
