Learn about past achievements and what lies ahead for county parks in the Fairfax County Park Authority’s Fiscal Year 2016 Strategic Plan and Annual Report, which is now available online at https://issuu.com/fcpa/docs/strategic_plan_and_annual_report_we?e=1241219/39212093.

Park Authority Board Chairman William G. Bouie says there was much to celebrate in the past year. He writes in the report, “Despite the continued challenges associated with the economic recovery, the Fairfax County Park Authority continues to meet our community’s growing recreational needs at a high, nationally recognized standard of excellence.”

The Making Parks Count report includes information about significant strides our parks have made to increase revenues, trim operating costs, and use partnerships and grants to increase community involvement in park development. See how the Park Authority is using the Parks Count Needs Assessment to listen to community concerns and desires, allowing us to plan for the future. Get information about new outdoor fitness facilities and golf programs, trail network expansion, improved park accessibility, GIS technology at work, expanded stewardship education, new athletic fields, and the use of social media to encourage two-way communication with constituents.
