NATIONAL INDICATORS

Case-Shiller Home Price Indices

Based on the latest report, home prices in 20 U.S. cities, as measured by the S&P Case-Shiller Index, increased 12.9 percent in February from a year ago. However, the annual rate of growth is cooling in most areas. Home prices in the Washington Metropolitan area rose 9.1 percent over the year and 0.1 percent from January to February.

Consumer Price Index

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) for All Urban Consumers increased 1.5 percent over the last 12 months. Increases in the shelter and food indexes accounted for most of the increase. The Washington Area CPI rose 1.6 during the same time period.

Consumer Confidence Index

Source: The Conference Board. Compiled by the Fairfax County Department of Management and Budget.

The Consumer Confidence Index, which had decreased in February, improved in March. The index stands at 82.3 (1985=100), up from 78.3 a month ago. The present situation component fell slightly, while the expectations component rose. Lynn Franco, Director of Economic Indicators at the Conference Board, said that “consumers expect the economy to continue improving and believe it may even pick up a little steam in the months ahead.”

Gross Domestic Product

Real gross domestic product (GDP) increased at an annual rate of just 0.1 percent in the first quarter of 2014, according to the advance estimate by the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA). The rate may have been impacted by severe winter weather during the period. In the fourth quarter of 2013, real GDP increased 2.6 percent. It should be noted that the first quarter 2014 estimate will be revised twice before it is considered final.
FAIRFAX COUNTY HOUSING MARKET
