Thoughtful planning and a coordinated response can reduce turmoil and promote more rapid healing.

- Take next steps to establish a crisis response plan which includes identifying a crisis response team, communicating clear and universal expectations, and collaborating with community mental health services.
- Understand the extra considerations for postvention when dealing with a death by suicide.
- Support students impacted by a death by spotting signs of distress, affirming and normalizing their emotions, and connecting them with support, if needed.
- Identify signs of compassion fatigue in colleagues and advocate for their self-care and support.
