TURNING POINT

Treatment for young people at risk for psychosis or who have experienced a first psychotic episode

Does this sound like someone you love?

- Withdrawing from family or friends.
- Developing unusual thoughts or ideas.
- Difficulty thinking or having disorganized thoughts.
- Decreased energy or lack of motivation.
- Hearing or seeing things that other people don’t.

These may be signs of a more serious problem. With treatment, these thoughts, feelings, and behaviors can improve over time.

Early treatment and care can make a lifelong difference.

What is Turning Point?

Turning Point is a specialized program with two tracks for adolescents and young adults. The first episode track is coordinated specialty care that provides a full array of individualized services to address the impact of a psychotic disorder. The high-risk for psychosis track provides treatment designed to delay or reduce the impact of a psychotic disorder. Services begin at a lower intensity and can be “stepped up” as needed. Some individuals may move between the two tracks as their needs change.

What is the goal of Turning Point?

To help young people understand and manage these experiences as well as to build skills and supports to improve their ability to work, go to school, live independently and have enjoyable relationships.
