Two-Way Student/Teacher Dialogue

START

Student: Mrs. Murphy, I like candy. Can I have a piece, too?

Teacher: Medicine is not candy, and it’s not meant to be shared with other people, even if they are sick in the same way that you are.

Student: But Jimmy gets one, and it looks just like a piece of candy.

Teacher: This is medicine. Look at the container – medicine should always be kept in a special bottle with the name of the medicine.

Student: My mom keeps medicine in a locked cabinet at our house. We’re not allowed to touch it unless an adult is with us.

Teacher: That’s great! If you find a pill or a piece of candy, give it to a grown-up. Make sure you don’t try to taste it, because you never know what it could be.

Student: I’ll remember, Mrs. Murphy. Now can I get a real piece of candy?
