

New Police Station and Animal Shelter to Serve South County

Fairfaxcounty.gov/publicworks/capital-projects/south-county-police-station-and-animal-shelter

The new South County Police Station and animal shelter will serve residents and businesses in southern Fairfax County. The station includes space for the Animal Protection Police and a community room.

» The station and animal shelter will be located on Lorton Road between the intersections of Workhouse and Hooes Roads, a parcel designated for public safety use in 2001.

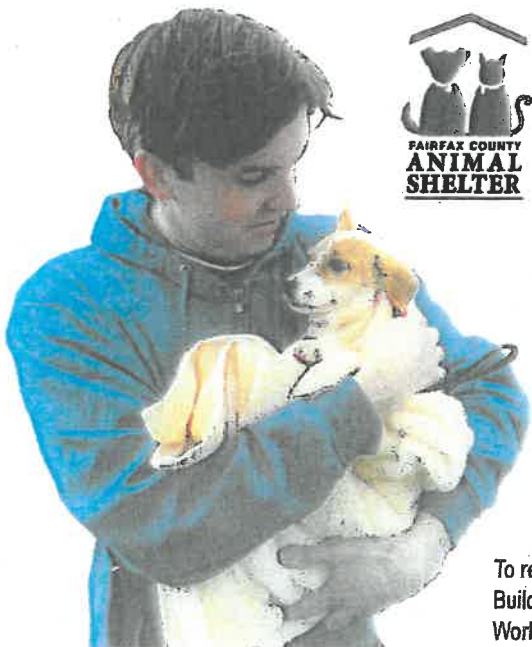

- » The collocated facilities consist of a
  - 39,000 sq-ft police station
  - 23,000 sq-ft animal shelter

» Animal services include rabies clinics, pet adoptions, and spay and neuter services.

» The projected cost to design and construct the facilities is $30M. Funding was approved in the 2015 Public Safety Bond Referendum ($151M).

» The Department of Public Works and Environmental Services is managing the project. For information, contact Lisa Gossard at 703-324-5800, TTY 711.
