

Sully Historic Site

3650 Historic Sully Way, Chantilly, VA 20151 • 703-437-1794 • www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/sully-historic-site

Sully reflects Fairfax County history. It was the 1794 home of Richard Bland Lee, Northern Virginia's first Representative to Congress and General Robert E. Lee's uncle. Sully is on the National Register for Historic Places, is accredited by the American Association of Museums and is part of the National Park Service's Underground Railroad Network to Freedom.

What You'll See

- Richard Bland Lee's home
- Lee family possessions
- Furnished historical rooms
- Original outbuildings
- Federal Period architecture
- A representative slave quarter
- A visitor center with gift shop
- An open-hearth kitchen
- Garden
- Food and clothing of the 1800s
- Work of a large, gentry farm
- A rentable meeting room

What You'll Do

- Take a guided house tour
- Stroll the grounds
- Take an outside walking tour
- Self-guided tours
- Discover archaeological sites
- Explore history
- Hear stories of the Lee family
- Learn local history
- Learn the contributions of enslaved African Americans
- Picnic
- Photography
- Attend a tea
- Host a birthday party
- Walk your dog
- Learn the importance of the Lee family in U.S. history
- Interact with interpreters
- Enroll in a museum education program
- Attend summer camps
- School field trips
- Scout adventures
- Watch planes at Dulles Airport

Special Events

- School and Scout programs
- Annual Car Show
- All Hallows Eve
- Dairy Days
- Springfest
- Concerts
- Easter Egg Hunt
- Summer Camps
- Holiday Candlelight Tour