

Placing your tee shot on the right side of the fairway will give you a clear shot at the green. Keep the ball below the hole on the green. If the pin is up front, an approach shot beyond the pin will make for a challenging putt.

This hole tempts long hitters to hit driver or 3-wood, but the environmental area on the left makes that a risky play. A tee shot in the fairway at the dogleg will leave you a short iron or wedge in to a shallow green.

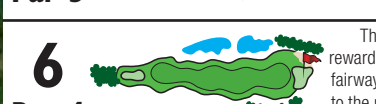

This straight forward par 3 can be just that with a good tee shot. However, the bunker on the right and severe downslope on the left will make for a challenging up and down should you miss the green.

Accuracy off the tee is the key to a good score on this hole. The pond on the left and the trees on the right form a narrow alleyway off the tee. A slight downhill lie awaits for your approach as you need to carry the pond to hit the long but shallow green.

Big hitters have a chance to reach this par 5 in two. Distance control is important as you approach the green, as any shot over the green leaves a very difficult up and down.

The first of two reachable par 4's is a high-risk, high-reward hole. Tee shots down the middle or just left of the fairway will set up nicely for a chance at birdie, but shots to the right leave a difficult approach. The green is deep so club up on the approach, especially if the pin is back.

This short par 3 requires less than a full shot from most golfers. Keep the ball low and below the hole as this green has a back to front slope.

The # 1 handicap hole is a challenging, uphill par 4. Local rules bail you out of trouble if you miss to the right. A bunker protects the front and left of this sloping, three-tiered green.

This reachable par 4 can offer a great shot for a closing birdie. Laying up from the tee leaves you in good position to finish with par or better, but over clubbing can take that opportunity away.

USGA Rules Govern All Play, Except Where Modified By Local Rules
